SUPREME COURT DECISIONS

In the Supreme Court of the State of Oregon.

The State of Oregon, Respondent, vs. [illegible] Havens [illegible], Appellants.

[illegible] the undertaking as [illegible]

[illegible] the Circuit Court [illegible] defendants appeal.

[illegible] had been held to answer upon a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. The defendants subscribed an undertaking which was in the form prescribed in Sec. 267 of the criminal code. The undertaking was dated and subscribed by the defendants as sureties in the presence of the magistrate taking the bail. These defendants at the same time justifying as such bail by affidavit duly subscribed and sworn by them before the magistrate and by him certified. The undertaking was received by the magistrate and thereupon the defendant was discharged, and the magistrate transmitted the undertaking with the other papers in the case to the Circuit Court in accordance with Sec. 411 of the code.

The magistrate neglected to certify in writing that the undertaking was taken and acknowledged before him, and he made no written order directing the sheriff to discharge the defendant.

On the trial of the cause the Circuit Court permitted the plaintiff to prove by parol that the defendant was discharged at the time the undertaking was signed; this is assigned as error.

The Court in the course of the trial permitted the committing magistrate, who was present, to append to or endorse upon the undertaking his certificate that the undertaking was taken and acknowledged before him, which is also assigned as error.

The appellant also assigns as error the instruction to the jury that if the undertaking was signed in the presence of the Justice an acknowledgment was not necessary.

Upton, J., delivered the opinion of the Court:

It was not error to admit parol proof of the defendant's discharge. If the committing magistrate had made and delivered to the Sheriff an order under Sec. 274 of the code directing him to discharge the defendant, the production of that order would not prove the discharge, nor does the statute require the Sheriff to indorse or certify upon the order his proceedings or to return the order into Court. The object of the order is to secure the discharge of the defendant, and it may be evidence in the hands of the Sheriff justifying the discharge but it is not evidence to prove the actual discharge. If neither the defendant or his bail asked to have it issued, it is difficult to see how they can complain that no such order is in existence. The consideration of the undertaking was a discharge from custody; if the defendant was actually discharged and no record was made of the fact, there is no reason why it should not be proved by parol.

The other questions raised in this case depend upon the construction of the statutes in regard to "undertakings" in criminal proceedings. Are the instruments contemplated simple contracts between the sureties and the State, or do these statutes contemplate contracts of record in a technical sense? Ordinarily a simple contract requires for its completion only the [illegible] of the parties upon sufficient consideration. A contract of record is entered into in more solemn form and upon being consummated becomes in substance the judgment of a Court.

A recognizance is an acknowledgment of a debt of record. It has many attributes of a judgment.—People vs. Van Eps, 4 Wend. 390.

Upon default an execution formerly issued upon it without an action or any further notice to the defendant.

The statute, S. 268, requires the undertaking to be dated and signed by the sureties in the presence of the magistrate. It requires the sureties to justify by affidavit—S. 270. And it requires the magistrate to certify substantially in the following form: Taken and acknowledged before me the day and year above written. The surety is not required by the statute, as is done in entering into a recognizance, to admit or confess that he owes the State a certain sum upon the conditions specified. All that the statute requires of him is that he shall sign the undertaking in the presence of the magistrate, nor is the magistrate required to certify to any particular mode of acknowledgment. The form of the instrument prescribed shows clearly that all that is intended is a simple promise for the payment of money upon certain conditions. Under the code the promise can only be enforced by an action. It is not called a recognizance in the statute and in its form and substance it has none of the characteristics of a recognizance. The statute declares (S. 255) the taking of bail consists in the acceptance of the undertaking of sufficient bail for the appearance of the defendant according to the terms of the undertaking. Formerly when it was the practice to secure the attendance of parties and witnesses by means of recognizances the proceeding amounted to an oral confession of judgment. No paper was signed by the party, but his confession or acknowledgment was entered on record. And the judgment was enforced by estreat or execution issued without further notice upon entry of the default. Several of the States without materially changing the formalities used in entering into a recognizance or the nature of the contract have provided by statute for proceeding in case of forfeiture by action in some specified court to recover the debt, and have thus placed the business of enforcing payment within them to appropriate jurisdictions where judgments for the payment of money are principally recorded. In as much as recognizances were not only quasi judgments but upon entering the forfeiture became liens upon real estate, the convenience of such change is apparent. In many States the formal proceedings are so far changed as to require the signature of the recognizor as well as or in place of his oral acknowledgment, where the substantial features of the recognizance are still retained, and instead of making a promise of future payment the party becoming surety is still required to acknowledge a past indebtedness, or in other words to confess a judgment. The record thus made when produced as evidence to sustain the action directed to be commenced is held to be conclusive. In these cases it has been still required that the form should be an acknowledgment of indebtedness to the people or the State. [Vert. Bun.; Hill [illegible]]

The undertaking prescribed by our statute is radically different in form and substance and retains nothing of the nature of the confession of a judgment or a recognizance. It is a simple contract—a conditional promise for the payment of money—to be sued upon as is a bond or promissory note.

In such an undertaking when is the contract complete? When it is signed by the parties, placed in the hands of the magistrate, and the defendant discharged, or when the magistrate shall have appended his certificate?

The law positively requires a justification by affidavit before the defendant has a strict right to his discharge. But it has never been held that the want of the affidavit can be set up as a defence in an action upon the undertaking.

The law makes it the duty of a magistrate to certify the acknowledgment of a deed, but if he neglects or declines to do so, but the deed is signed between the parties before the certificate [illegible] the certificate of acknowledgment is taken as proof of the execution, but it has never been held that in the absence of a certificate in case of a defect the [illegible] may prove the execution by parol.

When a party comes before a committing magistrate and deliberately subscribes such a promise as is set out in this undertaking and makes the formal affidavit of justification as bail he cannot in good faith set up that he has made no acknowledgment. He thus makes the acknowledgment the statute expressly requires [illegible] [illegible] that the statute [illegible] contemplate, and all that is [illegible] with the nature of the transaction. When the agreement is signed and in consideration of the promise the defendant is discharged the contract is made and complete, and new rights are acquired, new obligations are assumed, and there is no reason why the failure of an officer to perform a subsequent ministerial act should invalidate the contract.

The case in 3[illegible] Cal. 62 is cited as maintaining a contrary opinion from that here expressed.

The instrument under consideration in that case is [illegible] a recognizance in the legislative act that [illegible] and it is evident that the Court so [illegible] and based the opinion upon that view of the instrument. There is no reason to think the Court would have come to the same conclusion, if the instrument under consideration had been deemed to be like the undertaking in this case, simply a conditional promise for the payment of money at a future time.

Whatever reasons there may be under the criminal code of that State for the conclusion arrived at in regard to the instrument under consideration, the courts of that State have long held in regard to [illegible] cases which are substantially like the one here presented, and in regard to official bonds, that parties executing them cannot take advantage of want of compliance with the statute in certifying, justifying, approving, &c., such subsequent acts being treated as not essential to the binding force of the contract. (Peo. vs. Edwards, 9 Cal. 293; Dore vs. Covey, 13 ib. 506; Peo. vs. Carpenter, 7 ib. 403.)

See also Turner vs. Billagram, 2 ib. 522, and McDermott vs. Isbell et al., 4 ib. 113, as to the propriety of allowing a party who has had the benefit of the contract to raise similar objections.

The case of People vs. Kane, 4 Denio 534, cited by appellant, sustains the views here expressed in regard to the difference between a simple contract and a recognizance, and shows that the reason for the rules of practice applicable to recognizances totally fail when applied to this case. Permitting the magistrate to append his certificate at the trial was not an error affecting a substantial right, and there is no error in the charge to the jury.

The judgment should be affirmed.

The Bells of Moscow

THE HOLY CITY—THE GREAT BELL—THE IVAN TOWER—MUSIC OF THE BELLS, ETC.

The foreign correspondent of the New York Observer has the following article on "The Bells of Moscow" in a recent issue of that paper:

At the foot of the Ivan Tower, in the Kremlin of Moscow, supported by a pedestal of stone, is the largest bell in the world, and probably the largest that ever was in the world. A piece is broken out of its side and the fragment is lying near. The breadth of the bell is [illegible] It is twenty feet across—that the [illegible] has been used as a chapel, [illegible] can stand as in a circle sixty feet.

In Russia the bell is an instrument of music for the worship of God as truly and fitly as the organ in any other country. This fact is not mentioned in the accounts we have of the wonderful enormous and almost incredibly [illegible] bells that have been cast in Moscow, but it is the key to what would otherwise be difficult to explain. It appears foolish to cast bells so large as to be next to impossible for [illegible] to use, in danger always of falling and dragging [illegible] to ruin in their fall. But when the bell is a [illegible] of communication with the Infinite, and the worship of a people and an empire finds expression in the majestic tones of a bell, it is [illegible] to be a wonder that a bell should have a tongue [illegible] requires twenty four men to move, and whose music should send a thrill of praise into every [illegible] in the city and float away beyond the river into the plains afar.

Moscow is the holy city of [illegible] Pilgrims come hither from [illegible] and on foot and sometimes without [illegible] have seen them, with staves in [illegible] their travel-worn feet bound up in [illegible] ing their way to the sacred hill. And [illegible] draw nigh unto the city, and on the [illegible] the music of the holy bells is first [illegible] ears, they fall upon their [illegible] and worship God. If they could go no farther [illegible] would be content to die there, for they have [illegible] the bells of Moscow, and on [illegible] their souls have been taken up to [illegible] is the sentiment of the superstitious [illegible] and it is a beautiful sentiment [illegible] indeed, but all the more delicate and [illegible]

As long as five hundred years ago, this [illegible] of bells was an art in Russia. It is one of the fine arts now. Perhaps our great bell founders, the Meneelys, will not admit that the [illegible] there have any more skill in their [illegible] than we have, and I am not sure that [illegible] have any tones more exquisite than ours would have if we would put as much silver and gold in our bell metal as they do. But so long as the precious metals are at the present premium, [illegible] or none of them will find its way into our church bells. We have not the mistaken idea of the Russian as to the use of a bell. We use it to call the people to the house of worship. They use the bell for worship. Our bells speak to men. Their bells praise God. They cast their silver and their gold into the molten mass, and it becomes an offering, as on an altar, to Him who is worshipped with every silvery note and golden tone of the holy bell.

This one great bell is the growth of [illegible] In 15[illegible] it was cast, and only weighed 36,000 pounds. It fell in a fire and was recast in 1654, being increased to the astonishing weight of 288,000 pounds. This was too vast a weight to be taken up to the top of the tower, and it was sustained by a frame at the foot of it. In 1706 it fell in another fire and was broken into fragments, which lay there on the ground about thirty [illegible] It was recast in 1733, and four years afterwards a piece was knocked out of the side of it, and it has been standing here on the ground more than a century. It weighs 444,000 pounds! In the thicker part it is two feet through. It has relief pictures on it of the Emperor and Empress, of the Saviour and the Virgin Mary, and the Evangelists.

Ascending the Ivan tower we find on three successive stories bells to the number of thirty four. Some [illegible] of astonishment had he not seen the giant below. The largest is on the first story above the chapel and weighs more than sixty tons. It swings freely and is easily rung. I smote it with the palm of my hand, supposing that such a blow could not produce the slightest vibration in such a mighty mass of iron, but it rung out as clear and startling as if a spirit within had responded to my knock without. Two bells are of solid silver, and their tones are exquisitely soft, liquid and pure. I was exciting to go from one to another and strike them with their tongues or with your hand and catch the variety and richness of their several melodies.

The chapel below is dedicated to the patron saint of all ladies about to be married, and it may be readily believed that the bell that gives expression to their prayers will have at least to their ears the sweetest tone of all the bells in Moscow.

I had come down from the Kremlin to my lodgings at Billiot's and wearied with the wanderings of the day was lying on the bed and looking out on the city. It is just before sunset, and to-day has been oppressively warm. A delicious glow from the gorgeous west is bathing the domes and roofs with splendid colors, and silence is stealing in with the setting sun upon the crowded town. It is the eve of one of their most holy festivals of the Church. One vast church edifice is directly in view of my window and but a short distance off. As I lie musing from this church at hand comes the softest, sweetest tone of an evening bell. Another tone responds. A third is heard. The Ivan tower on the height of the Kremlin lets his tremendous voice, like the voice of many waters. And all the churches and towers over the whole city—four hundred bells and more in concert in harmony with none and [illegible] up their voices in an anthem of praise [illegible] one might to hear with mortal ears waves of melody, an ocean of music deepening, heaving, changing, swelling, sinking, rising, sounding, overwhelming, exulting. I have heard the great organs of Europe, but they were tame and trifling compared with this. The anthem of nature at Niagara is familiar to my ear [illegible] thunder-tone great monotone. The music of Moscow's bells is above and beyond them all. It is the voice of the people. It utters the emotions of millions of loving, beating, longing [illegible] [illegible] perhaps [illegible] ours but [illegible] the great Father in these solemn and inspiring tones, as if these tongues had [illegible] to cry: "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, heaven and earth are full of Thy glory."

The Daily Oregonian.

MONDAY MORNING, JAN. 11, 186[illegible]

What Shall We Read?

[illegible] ... which such ... was contagious

Eustace Budgell ... by Addison ... but was driven ... by his failure ... fortune ... the disgrace which he had brought upon himself by forging an article in his own favor in the will of his friend Dr. Tindal. The legacy was set aside, and Budgell, who was to be tried for the forgery, threw himself into the Thames before the trial came on ... Johnson ... utterly disgraced and penniless, ... and driven to despair, no doubt he would have committed suicide had Cato never been written. Many a man who never read that tragedy has, under similar circumstances, put an end to his existence. Cato came out seven or eight years before Budgell committed suicide, so it appears that the "example" did not become "contagious" until he had become irretrievably ruined. In the prologue to his satires Pope made ... at him ... the shoulders of Dennis ... him represented as a fellow of no spirit who

> Let Budgell charge low ... on his quill
> And write whate'er he pleased, except his will.

Although Budgell left on his table previous to his last deed the remark given by the Advocate's writer, that remark was but a groundless excuse for an act to which a man who possessed no moral rectitude was driven by crime, by pecuniary misfortune and by disappointed ambition. No fact would seem to be clearer than that he did not commit the deed simply because Addison had represented suicide with such luxury of style. There is an old story that one Cleombrotus, that he might enjoy Plato's Elysium, leaped into the sea, and Empedocles, to be deemed a god, threw himself into the crater of Etna; but Budgell's suicide did not proceed from any such luxurious or ambitious principle. His deed therefore furnishes no argument against so noble a composition as Addison's Cato.

There is enough that is vicious in our literature for the moralist to condemn, and he only blunts his weapons and weakens his power who censures such immortal productions as our higher dramas indiscriminately with the corrupt and corrupting productions which constantly issue from the press—the gilded ephemerides of literature, which, as a solemn poet remarks—

> Spring up in a day
> From lean and soiled shallow brains of sand
> And in a day expire.

If such compositions as Addison's Cato are to be condemned because of their evil tendency, where will our severe censors stop? We fear we would have a sweeping index expurgatorius, which would destroy most of the great monuments of literature. Would Shakspeare be left us? We fear not. Perhaps we would soon be forbidden to "repeat the rage divine" of Paradise Lost, and commanded to burn Comus and Samson Agonistes. There is every probability at any rate that Scott would be interdicted. Sterne and Swift would certainly be tabooed, and Dickens would not fare much better. Going back to the very basis of literature, the charming narrative of the Odyssey, which is the foundation of every fairy story and every tale of wonder ever told, would be taken from the hands of our boys at school. It would be nothing less than "flat burglary," as Dogberry has it, for them to read the love tale of pius Æneas and infelix Dido. If Cato and Hamlet are to be expunged, the high old tragedies of the Greeks must go with them, Latin writers, such as Terence, are still more objectionable, and all our college learning must be amended or changed. We think we are not making an extravagant case of it; we are adhering rigidly to the text with which we started.

It seems to us that a mind that can be corrupted by reading any writer of established fame, even though objectionable passages may occasionally be found in his pages, is naturally corrupt, and could not be much improved by any course of reading or instruction that might be pursued. The impure imagination can always find garbage to feed upon. Even an almost total vacuity of mind is no defense against impure thoughts and suggestions. This is shown every day by the conversation which is heard among the illiterate and vulgar. The best defense against this debasement of thought and conversation is in a liberal course of reading, instruction and study, and such a course would comprehend the class of authors we have mentioned, as well as the grave historians, the learned philosophers, the solemn poets, the profound theologians and the eloquent divines.

FILLING VACANCIES.—The Copperhead papers and the Unionist are continually harping upon the section of the Constitution which says "The Governor shall issue writs of election to fill such vacancies as may have occurred in the Legislative Assembly." The interpretation of this depends somewhat on circumstances. If the Governor is going to call an extra session, then it is his duty to issue writs ... but if there is to be no extra session, what is the use of the expense? Suppose a member of the Legislature should die or resign a month before the next general election, would it be the imperative duty of the Governor to order a special election to fill the vacancy? The custom is when vacancies occur, to take no notice of them unless a session is to be called. Then the Governor must act. He is the judge who must decide when those occasions arise which necessitate an extra session, and by consequence it virtually rests with him whether the vacancies are to be filled or not. For the exercise of this discretion he is responsible only to his conscience and to his constituents.

THREE ... BLOWS ...—Colonel Chapman has come to the surface and spouted again. He writes a long letter to the Herald, makes one more effort by quoting from Macbeth to diversify the form of his puerile argument on the Legislative question. The author of nearly all the deviltry in the House during the late session and repudiated by the people of Multnomah ... talk about the Republican members as the "conspirators." We would commend to his perusal the excellent Democratic doctrine on the subject of resignations set forth in resolutions concerning Senators Williams and Corbett, which he voted for. Colonel Chapman's first duty as a Democrat is to ... that doctrine and resign.

The True Doctrine

Whatever reputation Secretary McCulloch may have lost by his concurrence with Andrew Johnson's usurpation in the matter of reconstruction, it is certain that he has saved much by his fidelity to the financial honor of the nation. There are portions of his last report which for their honorable sentiments cannot be too highly commended. Andrew Johnson's villainous recommendation of repudiation has not affected the price of our securities, the chief reason of which is that the acting President represents nobody and does not know what he is talking about. The following brief paragraph from the Secretary's report deserves to be read again and again. It contains the essence of the whole controversy:

He begs leave merely to suggest, as he has already done before, that alleviation of the burden of the public debt is to be obtained, not in a denial of the nation's credit, not in threats of repudiation—not in a further issue of irredeemable notes, not in arguments addressed to the fears of bondholders, but in a clear and explicit declaration by Congress that the national faith, in letter and spirit, shall be inviolably maintained—that the bonds of the United States intended to be negotiated abroad as well as at home, are to be paid when the time for payment arrives, in that currency which is alone recognized as money in the dealing of nation with nation. Let Congress say this promptly, and there can be little doubt that the credit of the government will so advance that within the next two years the interest on the larger portion of the debt can be reduced to a satisfactory rate. He, therefore, earnestly recommends that it be declared without delay, by joint resolution, that the principal of all bonds of the United States is to be paid in coin.

REPUDIATION ANSWERED.—The House of Representatives, like the Senate, took formal notice of Andrew Johnson's proposition to repudiate the public debt. The resolution adopted recites the disgraceful language of the message, and concludes with the following ringing sentences:

Resolved, That all forms and degrees of repudiation of the national indebtedness are odious to the American people, and under no circumstances will their Representatives consent to offer the public creditor as full compensation a less amount of money than that which the Government contracted to pay.

The resolution was immediately adopted by a vote of 154 yeas to 6 nays. That Oregon readers may know the six men who dared to vote for national dishonor, we here give their names: Archer, of Maryland; Adams, Grover, Jones and Trimble of Kentucky; and Mungen, of Ohio. It is some gratification to know that but one man of the North—Mungen—sought the base distinction of being ranked with the infamous six.

KENTUCKY AND MARYLAND.—The mechanism of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution is beginning to work in these two States, and the ex-rebels who control them will soon be compelled to choose between a diminished representation in Congress or a full enfranchisement of the colored people. There is said to be a large independent party of Democrats in both States who declare their intention to concede the right of suffrage to all their colored men rather than submit to a loss of representation in Congress. The matter is before them; they can pursue what course they like.

CONSISTENT AS USUAL.—The Herald fully believes that the legal tender act is unconstitutional, and that all the greenbacks in circulation have been issued in violation of the fundamental law. Yet that paper would pay the public debt by fresh issues of greenbacks! This is Pendleton's theory and the Herald worships Pendleton. If the legal tender act is unconstitutional the Democratic financial theory hasn't a leg left to stand on.

They keep up the good old customs in Douglas county. The local paper of the 21 inst says: On Wednesday last Mr Singleton, of Deer Creek, had a quilting and fencing party at his place, at which more than a mile of fence was moved and built. In the evening a merry time was had by the brave and fair who were assembled. Such a social gathering evinces the most friendly feeling among neighbors.

Fearing that he might neglect her interests the lady went thither herself, and, not seeing the agent on account of the crowd, she bid on the carriage and so also did the agent, the price being run up to $200 before the competitors discovered each other.

The Copperheads who sustained the rebels and prolonged the war, thereby increasing the national debt tenfold, are now the loudest in finding fault with the taxes which they made it necessary for the Government to levy in order to pay the national debt.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Dec. 19, 1868.

CONGRESS.

On Monday the President of the Senate presented [illegible] communication from the [illegible] the resolution [illegible] of the [illegible] legislature [illegible] amendment. He [illegible] the following. This [illegible] the name [illegible] controlled the [illegible] Legislature.

The Speaker of the House laid before that body [illegible] legislature of Oregon [illegible] their enterprise [illegible] were referred [illegible] Executive [illegible] J. W. Morall [illegible] present [illegible] and referred [illegible] the death [illegible] the House [illegible] Monday the [illegible] of January.

[illegible]

[illegible] introduced [illegible] proposing the amendment [illegible] the United States to make suffrage uniform in all the States [illegible] amendment [illegible] passed the House, but I do not believe that [illegible] can get through the Senate [illegible] broader the basis of suffrage the better [illegible] the liberties and prosperity of the [illegible] sentiment [illegible] party. The party [illegible] But if the [illegible] United States [illegible] with the Chicago platform they will soon solve the problem themselves, by adopting, as soon as they are prepared for it, the true Republican standard as Iowa and Minnesota did last November, and as other States have done at previous elections. When this principle is adopted by a State there is no danger that it will ever recede from it, and no need of a constitutional provision to perpetuate the right to the franchise, for the tendency towards impartial suffrage, on the broadest practical basis, is universal—even in the monarchical countries of Europe. The Senate will be likely to take this view of the case, even if the House should pass some of the numerous resolutions proposing constitutional amendments now before it and leave the question to the decision of the people of the States respectively.

THE OREGON BRANCH RAILROAD

Mr Mallory, who is on the Pacific Railroad Committee in the House, has been appointed by its Chairman a member of a sub committee, that has charge of all the Pacific Railroad bills. He is making every exertion to have the bill for the Oregon branch from Nevada to Portland reported favorably to the House at an early day. Mr B. J. Pengra is working with his characteristic energy and is fair prospect of ultimate success to secure the passage of the bill. W. S. Tilton Esq. of New York, a member of the firm of Ladd & Tilton, of Portland is here and doing all in his power to aid in getting the bill through. Mr Tilton is doing good service for Oregon, and he serves the highest credit for his energy and zeal in behalf of the interests of our State. Senators Williams and Corbett have charge of the bill in the Senate, where it is now before the Pacific Railroad Committee and are urging it forward as rapidly as possible, with a reasonable prospect of getting it through the Senate.

THE ALASKA SCANDAL.

The House Committee on Public Expenditures has been investigating the charges of corruption in the Alaska purchase. Robt J. Walker testified that he received from Baron Stoeckl, the Russian Minister, $26,000 in gold for his letters on Alaska and services rendered in getting the appropriation bill passed, and that D. C. Forney, publisher of the Washington Chronicle, was presented with $3,000 in gold for his courtesy in allowing Mr Walker the use of his paper. The money was offered to Col. J. W. Forney, and refused by him. It was then given to the publisher of the paper by Baron Stoeckl. It was a free gift, no understanding having been entered into.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

The numerous bills and resolutions introduced in Congress for the resumption of specie payments and pledging the payment of the National debt in coin, show a much more healthy feeling on that subject than existed last winter. The greenback hobby of Pendleton & Co has lost its force, and is about played out, having proved an element of discord and weakness among the Democrats in the late canvass. The danger of repudiation and financial ruin, so imminent a few months ago, now seems to be passed and the prospect for an early return to a sound specie basis is better than it has been at any time since the war.

K.

Mark Twain's Visit to General Grant

Mark Twain went to see General Grant on his return to Washington the other day, and this is what Mark writes about it:

"I had said to him: 'Sir, what do you propose to do about returning to a specie basis?' To which he made no audible reply. Then I said: 'Sir, do you mean to stop the whisky frauds, or do you mean to continue them?' To which he replied as before. I now said: 'Do you intend to do straightforwardly and unostentatiously what every true, high minded Democrat has a right to expect you to do, or will you, with accustomed obstinacy, do otherwise, and thus, by your own act, compel them to resort to assassination?' To which he replied: 'Let us have peace.' I continued: 'Sir, shall you insist upon stopping bloodshed at the South in plain opposition to the Southern will, or shall you, for only permit a brave but unfortunate people to worship God according to the dictates of your own conscience?' No reply. 'Sir, do you comprehend that you are not the President of a party?—that you were not elected by your own strength, but by the weakness of the opposition? That, consequently, the Democrats claim you, and justly and righteously expect you to administer the Government from a Democratic point of view?' Riotous silence. Sir, who is to report the customary, necessary, coherent and instructive interviews with the President—Mack, of the Figaro, J. B. S., of the World, or myself, of the Tribune?' General Grant said: 'Let us have peace.' I resumed: 'Sir, do you propose to exterminate the Indians suddenly with soap and education, or doom them to the eternal annoyance of warfare relieved only by periodical pleasantries, by new bonds and perishable treaties?' No response. 'Sir, as each section of the Pacific Railroad is finished, are you going to make the companies spike down their rails before you pay? Which is to say, are you going to be a deliberate tyrant?' A silence undistinguishable from the preceding was the only response. 'Sir, have you got your Cabinet all set? What are you going to do with those Blairs?' 'Let us have peace.' 'Sir, do you comprehend who it is that is conversing with you?' 'Peace!' 'Sir, am I to have Nasby a postoffice, or—' 'Go to the—mischief! I have a thousand of your kind round me every day. Questions, questions, questions! If you must ask questions, follow Frith and inquire after the Erie rolling mill—you'll have steady employment. I can't stand it and I won't stand it—I must have peace!'"

The following soliloquy was overheard by a lady who lives opposite, in Napoleon, Henry county, Ohio. Sighing lover before the kitchen window: "Is it lonely you are there with ut me?" A voice within replies: "Not at all, Henry. Willie's been here [illegible]."

The New York Herald says there is no need of apprehension from the reports relative to the action of the Supreme Court on the legal tender act, as the higher law of public necessity and public welfare will govern the matter.

Barnum denies the rumor that he intends opening a Museum in London.

PROSPECTUS
THE SAN FRANCISCO HERALD.

On the FIRST OF JANUARY, 1869, THE SAN FRANCISCO HERALD will be revived as a first-class Commercial Daily Newspaper, independent in politics, under the Editorial control of its former Editor, JOHN NUGENT, assisted by a thoroughly efficient and able Staff. The Herald will be issued as a Morning Paper, but there will be an Afternoon Edition prepared for the interior of the State and for Nevada, with the Market, Stock and Local Reports up to the hour of going to press.

It is the design of the present enterprise to establish the best newspaper that—by the aid of unlimited means and the highest order of talent in all its departments—can be published on this coast, making it, in all essential particulars, as much a necessity to the Mercantile and Business Public, and as valuable as a news[illegible], as any of the first-class New York Journals. It will be the chief aim of its projectors—by the exactness of its information on all matters of business—to give it a reputation for thorough reliability as a [illegible] and Business Paper; at the same time that in the ability of its conduct in the other departments of Law, Literature, Local Intelligence, and other elements that go to make up a Daily Morning Paper—it shall likewise be kept up to the highest standard.

While the vast Agricultural Interests and the rapidly growing Manufacturing Industry of the State will be earnestly promoted, as well Editorially as in the News Department, that interest which drew hither the first grand tide of immigration will be fostered with special care. Everything worthy to be known in connection with Mining Enterprises and all inventions and discoveries calculated to enhance the profits or stimulate the labor of the Miner shall be duly chronicled and described.

Mr. Nugent, whose ability as an Editor is sufficiently known, will be assisted by gentlemen whose judgments have been educated and matured by long and varied experience in their respective Departments.

TERMS, ETC.—The San Francisco Herald will be published every morning, and will be furnished to subscribers at 50 cents per week, payable to the Carriers; single copies 10 cents. It will be mailed to subscribers outside the city at Eighteen Dollars a year, payable in advance, 6 months, Nine Dollars, 3 months, Five Dollars.

Communications intended for the Editor should be addressed to John Nugent, 414 California street, San Francisco. Business letters may be sent to

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Saturday, Dec. 19, 1868.

CONGRESS.

On Monday, the President of the Senate presented [illegible] a communication from the Governor of Oregon, transmitting the resolution of the Legislature [illegible] proposing to rescind its ratification of [illegible] constitutional amendment. Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary. This is an [illegible] brought on the name of Oregon by [illegible] who controlled the last Legislature.

The Speaker of the House laid before that body several [illegible] from the Legislature of Oregon asking aid [illegible] other enterprises. Numerous bills and resolutions were introduced and the Speaker presented several executive communications. The credentials of J. W. Menard, the colored man who claims a seat as Representative from Louisiana, were presented, and referred to the Committee on Elections. The death of Finney, of Pa., was announced, and the House adjourned. Congress will adjourn on Monday the 21st for the holidays, to meet again on the 5th of January.

THE SUFFRAGE QUESTION.

Several joint resolutions have been introduced in both houses of Congress proposing to amend the Constitution of the United States so as to make suffrage uniform in all the States. Such an amendment may possibly pass the House, but I do not believe that anything of the kind can get through the Senate. The broader the basis of suffrage the firmer are the liberties and prosperity of the people established. This is the sentiment of the great Union Republican party—the party of liberty and progress—and of nine-tenths of all or nearly all its representatives in Congress. But if the question is left to the loyal States in accordance with the Chicago platform, they will soon solve the problem themselves, by adopting, as soon as they are prepared for it, the true Republican standard, as Iowa and Minnesota did last November; and as other States have done at previous elections. When this principle is adopted by a State there is no danger that it will ever recede from it, and no need of a constitutional provision to perpetuate the right to the franchise, for the tendency towards impartial suffrage, on the broadest practical basis, is universal—even in the monarchical countries of Europe. The Senate will be likely to take this view of the case, even if the House should pass some of the numerous resolutions proposing constitutional amendments now before it, and leave the question to the decision of the people of the States respectively.

THE OREGON BRANCH RAILROAD.

Mr. Mallory, who is on the Pacific Railroad Committee in the House, has been appointed by its Chairman a member of a sub committee, that has charge of all the Pacific Railroad bills. He is making every exertion to have the bill for the Oregon branch from Nevada to Portland reported favorably to the House at an early day. Mr. D. J. Peegra is working with his characteristic energy, and a fair prospect of ultimate success, to secure the passage of the bill. C. E. Tilton, Esq., of New York, a member of the firm of Ladd & Tilton, of Portland, is here, and doing all in his power to aid in getting the bill through. Mr. Tilton is doing good service for Oregon, and deserves the highest credit for his energy and zeal in behalf of the interests of our State. Senators Williams and Corbett have charge of the bill in the Senate, where it is now before the Pacific Railroad Committee, and are urging it forward as rapidly as possible, with a reasonable prospect of getting it through the Senate.

THE ALASKA SCANDAL.

The House Committee on Public[illegible]penditures has been investigating the charges [illegible] corruption in the Alaska purchase. Robt. J. [illegible]lker testified that he received from Baron [illegible]toeckl, the Russian Minister, $20,000 in gold f[illegible] his letters on Alaska and services rendered in [illegible]etting the appropriation bill passed, and that D. C. Forney, publisher of the Washington Chronicle, was presented with $3,000 in gold for his courtesy in allowing Mr. Walker the use of his paper. The money was offered to Col. J. W. Forney, and refused by him. It was then given to the publisher of the paper by Baron Stoeckl. It was a free gift, no understanding having been entered into.

FINANCIAL MATTERS.

The numerous bills and resolutions introduced in Congress for the resumption of specie payments, and pledging the payment of the National debt in coin, show a much more healthy feeling on that subject than existed last winter. The greenback hobby of Pendleton & Co. has lost its force, and is about played out, having proved an element of discord and weakness among the Democrats in the late canvass. The danger of repudiation and financial ruin, so imminent a few months ago, now seems to be passed, and the prospect for an early return to a sound specie basis is better than it has been at any time since the war.

K.

Mark Twain's Visit to General Grant.

Mark Twain went to see General Grant on his return to Washington, the other day, and this is what Mark writes about it:

"I had said to him: 'Sir, what do you propose to do about returning to a specie basis?' To which he made no audible reply. Then I said: 'Sir, do you mean to stop the whisky frauds, or do you mean to connive at them?' To which he replied as before. I now said: 'Do you intend to do straightforwardly and unostentatiously what every true, high minded Democrat has a right to expect you to do, or will you, with accustomed obstinacy, do otherwise, and thus, by your own act, compel them to resort to assassination?' To which he replied: 'Let us have peace.' I continued: 'Sir, shall you insist upon stopping bloodshed at the South, in plain opposition to the Southern will, or shall you generously permit a brave, but unfortunate people to worship God according to the dictates of your own conscience?' No reply. 'Sir, do you comprehend that you are not the President of a party?—that you were not elected by your own strength, but by the weakness of the opposition?' That, consequently, the Democrats claim you, and justly and righteously expect you to administer the Government from a Democratic point of view?' Riotous silence. 'Sir, who is to report the customary, necessary, coherent, and instructive interviews with the President,—Mack, of the Enquirer, J. B. S., of the World, or myself, of the Tribune?' General Grant said: 'Let us have peace!' I resumed: 'Sir, do you propose to exterminate the Indians suddenly, with soap and education, or doom them to the eternal annoyance of warfare, relieved only by periodical pleasantries of glass beads and perishable treaties?' No response. 'Sir, as each section of the Pacific Railroad is finished, are you going to make the companies spike down their rails before you pay?' Which is to say, are you going to be a deliberate tyrant?' A silence undistinguishable from the preceding was the only response. 'Sir, have you got your Cabinet all set? What are you going to do with those Blairs?' 'Let us have peace!' 'Sir, do you comprehend who it is that is conversing with you?' 'Peace!' 'Sir, am I to have Nasby's postoffice, or'— 'Go to the—mischief! I have a thousand of your kind around me every day. Questions, questions, questions! If you must ask questions, follow Fitch, and inquire after the Erie rolling mill—you'll have steady employment. I can't stand it, and I won't stand it—I must have peace!'"

The following colloquy was overheard by a lady who lives opposite, in Napoleon, Henry county, Ohio: Sighing lover, before the kitchen window—"Is it lonely you are there without me?" A voice within replies—"Not at all, Henry; Willie's been here for an hour."

The New York Herald says there is no need of apprehension from the reports relative to the action of the Supreme Court on the legal tender act, as the higher law of public necessity, and public welfare will govern the matter.

Barnum denies the rumor that he intends opening a Museum in London.

The Herald will be issued as a Morning Paper, but there will be an Afternoon Edition prepared for the interior of the State and for Nevada, with the Market, Stock and Local Reports up to the hour of going to press.

It is the design of the [illegible] enterprise to establish the best newspaper that—by the aid of unlimited means and the highest order of talent in all its departments—can be published on this coast, making it, in all essential particulars, as much a necessity to the Mercantile and Business Public, and as valuable as a [illegible], as any of the first-class New York Journals. It will be the chief aim of its projectors by the exactness of its information on all matters of Business to give it a staple reputation for thorough reliability as a Commercial and Business Paper; at the same time that in the ability of its conduct in the other departments—Law, Literature, Local Intelligence, and other elements that go to make up a Daily Newspaper—it shall likewise be kept up to the highest standard.

While the vast Agricultural Interests and the rapidly growing Manufacturing Industry of the State will be earnestly promoted, as well Editorially as in the News Department, that interest which drew hither the first grand tide of immigration will be fostered with special care. Everything worthy to be known in connection with Mining Enterprises, and all inventions and discoveries calculated to enhance the profits or stimulate the labor of the Miner shall be duly chronicled and described.

Mr. Nugent, whose ability as an Editor is sufficiently known, will be assisted by gentlemen whose judgments have been educated and matured by long and varied experience in their respective Departments.

TERMS, ETC.—The San Francisco Herald will be published every morning, and will be furnished to subscribers at 50 cents per week, payable to the Carriers; single copies, 10 cents. It will be mailed to subscribers outside the city at Eighteen Dollars a year, payable in advance; 6 months, Nine Dollars; 3 months, Five Dollars.

G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 825 AND 647 FRONT ST
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities, CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.

CELEBRATED
AROMATIC
SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS.

TO THE CITIZENS OF OREGON:

I BEG LEAVE TO CALL THE ATTENTION OF THE citizens of Oregon to my celebrated AROMATIC SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS, a medicinal Diet Drink of eminently salutary qualities manufactured by myself, exclusively, at my factory at Schiedam, in Holland.

[illegible] to cure [illegible] obstructions of [illegible] bladder and [illegible] prompt, decided, and invariably reliable.

It is now some twenty years since the Proprietor first introduced it to the American public, and during that time he has received [illegible] letters from physicians, endorsing it as the purest liquor that have ever used in their practice.

It is made from barley of the finest quality, selected with great care from the products of the most celebrated grain-growing districts, is flavored with the essence of the aromatic juniper berry of Italy, and is rectified by a peculiar process which expels from the spirit every acrid particle.

As a means of preventing and correcting disagreeable and often dangerous effects produced on the stomach and bowels by a change of water—a visitation to which travelers, new settlers, and all unacclimated persons are peculiarly liable—the

SCHIEDAM AROMATIC SCHNAPPS

Will be found absolutely infallible, while, in cases of dropsy, gravel, obstructions of the kidneys, diseases of the bladder, stricture, dyspepsia and general debility, it is recommended most emphatically by the most distinguished members of the medical profession.

It is put up in quart and pint bottles, in cases with the name of the undersigned on the bottle and cork, and a fac-simile of his signature on the label. For sale by all respectable druggists and country merchants.

Are you WEAK, DEBILITATED, NERVOUS? Is your sleep disturbed? Do you have palpitation of the heart, or any inclination to melancholy? Diseases of such a nature require a prompt DIURETIC, which will be found in

Wolfe's Aromatic Schiedam Schnapps.

Wolfe's Schiedam Schnapps

Is sold by all Grocers and Apothecaries.

Wolfe's Schiedam Schnapps

Is recommended by all the Medical Faculty.

Wolfe's Schiedam Schnapps

Is imitated and counterfeited, and purchasers will have to use caution in purchasing.

WOLFE'S AROMATIC SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS,
Imported by UDOLPHO WOLFE, of New York, expressly for medicinal and private use.
WHAT DO YOU DRINK?

Universal Suffrage

[illegible]

The [illegible] of the letter by [illegible]

[illegible] franchise [illegible] the color of the [illegible] the enfranchise [illegible] humanity [illegible] me to make [illegible] bargaining [illegible] asked [illegible] this matter [illegible] of the negro [illegible] shall be [illegible] every [illegible] his forfeited rights [illegible] long this [illegible] ballot box. I am [illegible] justice [illegible] To vindicate the rights [illegible] duty and a noble work [illegible] rebels. In this I was very positive [illegible] people in my recent canvass and I will stick to it. If I thereby [illegible] popular favor in some quarters so be it. I regard justice and right more than any man's favor or that of any party not even excepting that which made me United States Senator. If that party takes any other position on this subject it will in my opinion endanger its future success if not its existence. Any party that refuses justice to its friends while hastening to heap unsolicited favors upon its foes ought to go down and it will. I will not [illegible] heartless [illegible] If the [illegible] Missouri [illegible] men if the whole land must [illegible] political suicide [illegible] some decent pretext. Let not the jeers of rebels at its truckling folly drown the wail of the negro over the destruction by his professed friends, of his last hope of enfranchisement in that State.

One other matter in conclusion. From the outbreak of the rebellion until the latter part of 1863 the Union men of Missouri were hampered by the Conservatives, the great mass of whom finally landed in the ranks of the Democracy. The Radical party there achieved nothing till it parted company with them and planted itself upon Radicalism stern and fierce. This 'universal suffrage and universal amnesty' scheme seems to me to indicate that we are in danger of having a second crop of Conservatives [illegible] If it be so we ought at once to recognize the fact and brace ourselves up to meet this new and unexpected exigency. For one I will not yield an inch of ground to Conservatism howsoever or wheresoever it may manifest itself. It is paralysis to any party that embraces it. I stand by Radicalism which has led us to the past victories because I believe it the only foundation upon which to build any lasting structure of loyalty and freedom. If that be the mind of our party we need have no fear of the future but if we once begin to back down or waver especially if we do so in the hour of victory when we have the power to establish what we have gained and to gain still more we in my opinion admit that [illegible] have not been governed by principles and confess our unworthiness of our past triumphs. I am not ready and never expect to be for any such admission and I scorn any such confession. Believing that duty demands it, I am for going steadily forward under the Radical standard. If there are those who wish not or fear to go with us let them fall behind but let not the party lag with them. Above all never yield the lead to them.

An Indian Romance.—Among the Sikh nobles who, at the outset of the mutiny staked their [illegible] on the British side was the Rajah of Kupoorthulla. He was not a very great man, but he had influence, and no Englishman could have risked his status purse and person with more hearty and unquestionable loyalty. He helped to guard the Northern Delhi road then the key of our position, and when order had been restored the Governor General casting aside the old policy of meager rewards raised him by a single gift of land, to the wealth of a great English noble. The Rajah married an East Indian girl, became under her [illegible], a Christian and established a [illegible] on his own estates. Sweeping away at a single stroke the prejudices of a thousand years he introduced his wife into society and allowed her to appear in public and the officials for once heartily partial to a native threw aside prejudices as rooted as his own and recommended that the Rajah should receive officially precedence in Oude. The Governor General consented and at the apex of the new social system of Oude stands a [illegible] Christian noble and the only woman in India for whom the guards turn out in the British provinces is the Christian Lady of Kupoorthulla."—London Spectator.
